

BERNSTORFF TO PRESENT NEW TERMS

EFFORT WILL BE MADE TO SATISFY PRESIDENT WILSON IN LUSITANIA CASE.

LAST OFFER REJECTED

German Ambassador Holds Long Conference Today With Secretary Lansing, the Result of Which Is Kept Secret.

Washington, Jan. 26.—Secretary Lansing had an engagement to confer today with Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, over the controversy growing out of the sinking of the liner Lusitania. Germany's last proposal in the Lusitania negotiations, has failed to satisfy President Wilson and Secretary Lansing. The ambassador, it was said, was to submit another tentative proposal for settlement, embodying the requirements of the United States.

The United States, it was authoritatively stated today, would insist upon holding the German government to a "strict accountability" for the loss of American lives, and desires that the Berlin government admit in effect that it is liable, according to law, for lives of neutrals lost in the commission of an act against a vessel of the enemy.

Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, had another conference today with Secretary Lansing over the Lusitania negotiations, the result of which was not divulged. The ambassador before leaving the state department spent some time dictating to a stenographer the document which he took with him to the German embassy.

It was made known in official quarters before the conference took place that the last German proposals were unsatisfactory and that the United States was pressing for full disavowal of the sinking of the liner with the loss of 110 American lives.

MOVIE SHOW THRILLS OF LIFE ON BORDER LURED BELOIT BOYS

Youngsters 'Discovered' North of 'Line' City on First Lap of Journey for the West.

Frank Dietz, 13, and Rudolph Lempe, 12, Beloit's pair of missing youths, who were reported to have been taken for the trail for the wild and woolly west, where the rearing broncho is the only locomotion for the pursuit of long-horned steers and where a ready trigger finger is more essential than a knowledge of the Bible.

Frank and Rudolph started for school Monday noon. They did not get there and neither did they return for supper. Police investigation with that on the part of the terrified parents established the fact that the two were seen at a movie show while the search was opening Monday evening. It was then that the incentive of the Line City theatre's program on that occasion was one of much rough riding, killing of despised gringos and a general thriller, along all blood and thunder lines. It proved the incentive for the youngsters to begin to mark a trail to the land of the setting sun from Beloit. The police dragnet extended into the country and early this morning the youths were located. They were dragged from a snug hole in the hay of a barn loft of the Morgan farm, between this city and Beloit.

Their parents were notified and have promised the policemen and their fathers and mothers to confine their future adventures in the west in the pages of their geographicals.

Rome, Jan. 25, via Paris, Jan. 26.—A dispatch from San Giovanni di Medua idea Nazionale, says that the Montenegrins made a determined effort to take the city of Scutari, but the approach of a strong Austrian column, forced the garrison to evacuate the place and the detachment on the mountain to retreat. The women, it is stated, conducted themselves as heroically as the men, carrying on their backs during the retreat, everything that was necessary to continue the struggle.

Although the fall of Scutari was discussed by the Italian public, the suddenness with which it was brought about has caused much surprise. Keen interest regarding the political questions regarding the entire Balkan question, Baron Sonnino, Italian foreign minister, had a long conference this morning with the king, and it is understood that he will be in the Italian cabinet tomorrow, certain features of the Albanian question will be discussed, although it is not expected that definite decisions of importance will be arrived at, the question is an international one and must be settled by agreement of the allies.

The indications were, however, that efforts to prevent the controversy being carried before the convention failed following the endorsement of the resolution by the executive committee last night.

Commander of German Submarine Tells Us U. S. Boat Escaped From Meshes Off Coast.

Budapest, Hungary, Jan. 26.—Naval Lieutenant Commander, Hermann, of the German submarine U-7, which torpedoed the French steamer Graveline, gives the following description of how his submarine was caught in the net of England and how under the most difficult circumstances, he succeeded in saving the boat and crew from capture.

He said that they left their base early in the morning and passed into the North-Sea, the boat being under water with the periscope awash. "I looked through the periscope," he continued, "and could see a red buoy behind my boat. When ten minutes later I looked I saw the buoy again, still at the same distance behind us. I turned to the right and then to the left, but the buoy was still following us. I descended deep into the water, but still saw the buoy floating on the surface above us. At last I discovered that the boat of the enemy was the buoy and that we were dragging it along with us. At this time I also saw through the periscope that a strange small steamer was steering a course parallel to us, at the same time my sounding apparatus indicated that a screw steamer was in the vicinity. Observation revealed that five enemy torpedo boats were approaching from the rear and that the speed of the boat in the expectation of being able to attack one of them. The five torpedo boats arranged themselves in a circle. I sank at once to the bottom, and the enemy will deeper and get ready for eventualities.

"At this juncture my boat began to roll in a most incomprehensible manner. We began to rise and sink alternately, the sinking gear being apparently out of order. Soon after I discovered that we had encountered a wire netting and were hopelessly entangled in it. We had, in fact, got into the net of one of the hunters surrounding us.

"For an hour and a half the netting carried us with it, and although I made every effort to get clear of it, it seemed impossible. I saw nothing at all to do but to increase the weight in the submarine as much as possible so that I might try to break the netting. Fortunately when we started I had pumped in from five to six tons of water, filling all the tanks. I increased the weight of the boat to the utmost and suddenly we felt a shock and were clear of the netting. I then descended as deeply as I could, and the monometer showing thirty meters. We remained under water for eighteen hours. When I wanted to ascertain where we were, I discovered that my compass was out of order. For time I steered by the green color of the water, but at last I had to get rid of the ballast in order to rise. I then discovered we were in the same depth and was also out of order. I had, therefore, to be very fearful not to rise too high and thus attract the attention of the enemy. I turned the boat around and rose above the surface and I could see the enemy in front of me, and towards the left the east coast of England. I turned the boat around and the rudder did not work. In consequence, I had to sink again to the bottom of the sea where I remained for six hours at the end of which time I had succeeded in putting the compass in order and was able to continue the steering gear. But upon rising this time, we were detected by a torpedo boat which made straight for us. We were detected by a torpedo boat which made straight for us. We remained submerged for two hours, then turned slowly outwards and at a distance of some fifty meters from the leading enemy craft, passed towards the open sea. At ten o'clock in the evening we were able to rise to the surface in safety."

It is practically impossible to tell them if they desired, Monahan continued. "The reporters wanted to know the motive Mrs. Mohr had for wishing her husband killed and Brown replied that she wanted to get control of the doctor's property. Brown declared that Mrs. Mohr had been after them for three months to do the job."

Immediately after the state had rested, Arthur Cushing, counsel for Mrs. Mohr, moved that the indictments against his client be dismissed on the ground that it was at variance with the evidence. The motion was denied. A similar motion in behalf of Spellman also was dismissed.

It would provide that not more than four years nor less than two years after the new meeting of the Philippine legislature to be created by the pending bill, the president should withdraw the sovereignty of the United States and proclaim the independence of the Philippine people, provided he should see proper steps had been taken to secure peaceful means an independent government, "Republican in form, stable in character and prepared to enter into such binding agreements with the United States as the president may deem necessary for the protection of recognized rights and interests of the Americans and other nationals in the islands."

The president would be empowered to reserve naval bases, coaling stations and other property required by the United States for military purposes.

Might Delay Recognition.

The amendment would further provide that if a delay after expiration of four years the president should find proper steps had not been taken to establish an independent government, "or if he should find it expedient for reasons of the Philippine people, provided he should see proper steps had been taken to secure peaceful means an independent government, "Republican in form, stable in character and prepared to enter into such binding agreements with the United States as the president may deem necessary for the protection of recognized rights and interests of the Americans and other nationals in the islands."

The amendment would also authorize the president to invite co-operation of principal nations of the world to mutually pledge themselves to maintain the Philippine independence against any external force, to negotiate such an agreement with any nations willing to co-operate. That failing, the president would guarantee independence of the Philippines to the United States alone for five years.

He indicated to them that in addition to the preparedness program and revenue bill the administration is prepared to negotiate such an agreement with any nations willing to co-operate. As a result of the conference today details of the shipping bill which will be supported by the administration became known for the first time. Instead, it provides that the government should purchase or build ships and then lease them or sell them to corporations or private individuals.

In the senate the president has been told, however, long delays are threatened in debate over national defense, shipping, tariff and revenue bills.

The West Side Browns are going to give the Lakotas a hard game. Against the Chicago champions, the I. A. C. they only lost by six points at the I. A. C. gymnasium after a most exciting tilt. Any team that can hold the I. A. C. five to six points on their own court must be accepted as being good. But the Lakotas expect a victory against them.

The Oswego team, playing at Fond du Lac, walloped the Oshkosh team Saturday, and play Company K of Rockford a three game series this week. Much interest is being taken in the outcome, as Company K gave the Fond du Lac team two triumphs at Rockford, and Janesville fans desire to see if they can repeat with victories at Fond du Lac.

WELSH AND GRIFFITHS FIGHT 12 ROUND DRAW

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE)
Akron, O., Jan. 26.—Johnny Griffiths of this city and Freddie Welsh, lightweight champion, fought twelve rounds here Tuesday night to a draw.

"Oragan, onagan, Finegan," had nothing on Jimmy Johnston, brother of Doc Johnston, former Nap and now first sacker of the Pirates. Jimmy first came up as a member of the "Cubs." Back he went because he could not hit big league pitchers, although he was a wonderful base-runner. Back to the minors he went. The White Sox decided him worth a trial. Same story. Back to the minors. Then the Feds grabbed him a few months ago and from the Feds Charley Ebbets has purchased his release. The Brooklyn magnate being willing to give him a third trial in the big show.

Clark Griffith is having his troubles getting a suitable training place for the Senators this year. The family house his men have occupied at the University of Virginia each spring will not be for rent this spring.

ASSOCIATION FIVE IN CONTEST TONIGHT

"V" Five Play Basket Ball Game with a Milton College Team Tonight.—Class Game Last Night.

Tonight at seven fifteen sharp the Y. M. C. A. basket ball five will go against a strong team from Milton college in the local gymnasium. A good fast game can be expected by the crowd as both sides are in good condition. The lineup for the Milton five will probably be Lemphere, Burdick, Siebhoff, Talbot, Shaw and Hinkley. The first string of men will be used on the association team.

Games Last Night.
In the employed boys class last night a number of basket ball games were played. A tournament will be started and a number of teams to engage in contests last night. Harper's five defeated Taylor's team in a close game 6 to 0 and Brady's bunch won from Skelly's losers by a score of 12 to 8. Both of these games were fast from start to finish.

In another game between the two sides of the high school employed the Maroons 12 to 0. The lineups were as follows: Pickups, Jenkins, Navock, Schauler, Nichols and Woods. Maroon, McCue, Hilton, Hawthorne, McLaughlin, Hanson and Downs.

Sport Snap Shots MORRIS MILLER

Whether the Detroit Tigers will have a stronger pitching staff next season than last is, decidedly questionable. Bill James and Loudermilk did not add to the strength of the team when this pair was purchased from the St. Louis Browns, and it is said that James is suffering with a lame arm, which will hamper him out of the running. Loudermilk will have to get control before he can be of value, and Jennings' only hope is that some of the youngsters he has picked up will come through and help out. Dauss, Dubuc and Coveskie, his three veteran pitchers, who were forced to do all the work in the last campaign. Without improved pitching there is little hope for the Tigers to be in the pennant race in 1916.

Report in Atlanta has it that Charley Frank and Otto Jordan, old-time enemies, had a past time in that Jordan may return to the Atlanta team as second baseman and captain. It hardly seems possible, however.

Connie Mack may start his youngsters south earlier than he originally intended. Realizing that he has a lot of recruits to educate in the spring, he figures on going south much earlier than March 15. It is the fact that his young pitchers all lack control that has determined him to get them in action as early as possible. The Mackmen pitchers gave more passes than any other set of twirlers in the American league last season.

A few weeks ago the most popular of all winter pastimes was selling the Chicago Cubs. The Cubs having been duly sold, this diversion has been succeeded by the exciting sport of offering purses for Jess Willard and Frank Moran.

Pat Dougherty, former outfielder of the Chicago White Sox, has been elected president of the Interstate Baseball league, which comprises the cities of Borell, Jamestown, Olean and Wellsville, N. Y., and Bradford and Warren, Pa.

Jesse Altenburg, a freshman at Michigan, will leave college next semester to join the Pittsburgh Pirates for spring practice.

The United States National Lawn Tennis Association, which will hold its annual meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria on February 11, will probably admit associations that use the public parks to membership. This will mean a readjustment of the classifications, which now include clubs, active associations and allied associations.

Form players, scanning the 1915 records of the lightweight battlers, are much at sea. Johnny Dundee knocked Mitchell down three times, and Ritchie had to fight his head off to get an even break in the later rounds. Yet Rivers twice beat Dundee, and had a decisive margin each time. That comparison makes Rivers look far the better of the pair. But Ad Volgaist gave Rivers a furious argument, the Mexican just saving his bacon by frantic rallies towards the last—and Mitchell played with Volgaist as though Adolph were a toy. That makes Mitchell seem the safer proposition. Anyhow, it ought to be a desperate encounter all the way.

THE DUMA.

One always pictures Russia as illustrated by the lectures of a lecturer who, with the Siberian prisons, the oppression of Peter and Paul and all the other horrors. The slaying of the innocent in seeking for the guilty. The red circles of the nihilists and so forth and so on. The Russia of today is far different. The people are a down-trodden race always persecuted and always slaughtered by the cruel czar, yet there is another picture told. The Christian Science Monitor writes that although for the time being, owing to the failure of the Tsar to summon it in session, the Duma would seem to be, to a certain extent, deprived of its influence in public life, it is quite clear, to those who are really acquainted with the position in Russia, that the Russian people have a great hope for greater freedom. From the first, of course, the Duma has meant something quite different to the Russian people from that which Parliament means to the Englishman or the Reichstag to the German. The Duma has always partaken of the religious life of the people, and has been kindred to the church as much as the church is kindred to the people. This was clearly indicated, only quite recently, when the Bishop of Oufa declared emphatically that the regeneration of the Russian church depended on the Duma.

In every department of national life, in spite of the fact that it is at present largely inoperative, the Duma is having its influence. During the last eighteen months it has been more than one courageous stand for a greater liberty, notably on such matters as the advocacy of more liberal treatment for the Finn and the Jew and other subject peoples. Then again the Duma, in common with the whole of the Russian people, has shown a commendable desire to sink as far as may be, minor even major differences, in order to achieve unity in the one object before the people. This feeling has permeated everywhere, and it has produced quiet reforms in the most unexpected quarters. In a recent dispatch, for instance, which came to this paper from Geneva, attention was drawn to the work of Prince Chicherbatoff, who succeeded Mr. Maklakov as minister of the interior last April. One small fact among many was adduced as showing the wholesome effect of Prince Chicherbatoff's work. The position of the exiles in Siberia had been greatly improved in many places, and the exiles themselves did not know the reason for this until it became known that a police circular had been issued at Tomsk pointing out that, as changes had taken place in the ministry of the interior, agents were recommended to act, not as they pleased, but in accordance with the law.

Then again M. Khvostoff, who succeeded Prince Chicherbatoff in the ministry, carried on his predecessor's quiet but vigorous policy of reform. He did not wait until the Duma had chance to pass measures to secure the abolition of abuses; he used all the power he possessed to remedy them himself. He quickly realized, for instance, that any conditions of scarcity in Russia, wherever they were in evidence, were due not to any shortage, as Russia has an all too abundant supply of wheat, but rather to a lack of organization; the market was in a state of anarchy, and he set himself to work to remedy these deficiencies, and very quickly had effected the most beneficial changes in the matter of the general distribution of food throughout the country.

Then again the intimate connection between the zemstvos and the Duma is well known, and even when the Duma is not in session its work is steadily carried on by these councils. At the present moment the being done with great energy, and the project produced in one of the most significant in the history of modern Russia. Slowly but surely the government is being obliged to take forward steps. There is much halting, much discussion, much highbanded action, but the inevitable result is that the more liberal ideas gain the day.

At the present moment the struggle has reached another period. Within ten days of the outbreak of the war, congresses were called of the municipalities and the zemstvos and accomplished a really remarkable work in the matter of organization. It had recently been arranged that these congresses should be held again. The government, however, viewed the project with the utmost disfavor. It remembered that it was just such a congress which, in September last, demanded the summoning of the Duma and the setting up of a national ministry. The outcome is still uncertain.

Since its foundation, some ten years ago, the Russian Duma has learned many lessons, and perhaps the chief of them has been patience. The first Duma, with an enthusiasm that was bewildering, sought to bring in a political millennium by legislation. No system was too firmly established for it to attack and no distance was too great for it to go. The result was that within a few short months it had come to an end, and the Russian authorities set to work to "tame" the national assembly. This went on for some time, and then the reaction set in. The Duma had learned wisdom. It began to aim at building bridges rather than leaping gulfs, and at consolidating its gains. Today it is unquestionably one of the first powers for good in Russia.

THE WHITE SALE.

While the cotton trade and its following of speculators have been worrying about the falling off in exports of the United States has been steadily increasing its own cotton crop in increasing total.

Perhaps there is no more illuminating example of the prosperity this land of peace is enjoying than the cotton consumption figures just issued by the Census Bureau at Washington which show 554,725 bales of lint cotton absorbed by our mills last month, a record for December. This is over 100,000 bales more than in the corresponding month in 1914, and compares with 456,262 bales for December, 1912.

This forecasts a total home consumption for the season of between 7,200,000 and 7,500,000 bales of cotton out of a crop of approximately 11,200,000 bales. It means that while all the world is demanding our cotton at greatly enhanced prices, we are consuming it ourselves. The cotton mills of this country are humming and advices from all trade centers indicate increasing orders.

Not only is the current rate of consumption over 19 per cent ahead of what it was a year ago, but the trade expects that January and February will show record totals in the matter of mill consumption.

Linters, which have now become so valuable a by-product that in Texas unopened bolls were put through the gins, were consumed to the extent of 78,000 bales. The demand is likely to keep up for many a day, for even should the European war suddenly end, the armament program of the United States will undoubtedly make linters enjoy a higher price than existed in antebellum days.

Our exports may be dwindling in spite of the slowly disappearing surpluses of cotton in Europe, but this will not mean that Europe won't need cotton goods, so that if the mountain will not come to Mahomet then Mahomet must go to the mountain, and all Europe's buyers will have to come over here to attend our great white sale.

The fact that the politicians can fill any job without any experience of the work, convinces many of our thinkers that you can get a modern army without training any soldiers.

NINETY-THREE FROM COUNTY AT VARSITY

Rock County is Third in Rank in Sending Students to the Wisconsin University.

Madison, Jan. 26.—Official statistics just compiled by the registrar shows that Rock county ranks third in the state in regard to the number of students enrolled, there being ninety-three registered from Janesville, Beloit and other cities in the county. Milwaukee county ranks second with 401 students, and Dane county is first with a total of 1,272 registrations.

Wisconsin has a total enrollment of 2,555 students this year, out of a grand total of 4,848 students. This leaves 1,293 students coming from foreign territory. Illinois is largely represented at Wisconsin, the Sucker State having sent 360 students here, while Indiana and Iowa have sent 316 and 115 students respectively. Michigan and Ohio have each sent 69 young people to the Badger institution, while Minnesota and Missouri are represented with 64 and 50 students.

The enrollment from foreign countries has been curtailed this year, due probably to the strife on the continent. Even China, who has been sending over a score of students annually, has registered but fourteen this year. Canada is second with five students, while Egypt, England, India, Japan, Mexico, Peru and Australia have each sent but one student.

Whether the matter of raising the tuition to non-resident students will affect the enrollment in another year is a matter of much conjecture. There is considerable fear that the time that next year will find a noticeable difference in the registration totals, this difference ranging from three to five per cent.

P. Hiestand has expressed belief that the university will lose few students because of the enhanced fee.

BLACK MAGIC MAGICIAN WHO HAS ITEM FOR DISAPPEARING CAUGHT

Chicago, Jan. 26.—Black Magic teaches possessor to perform miracles and to become invisible; price $400. Post Office Inspector D. F. Angier was curious when he read that and he ordered the following complaint: the magician was turned over to the authorities. If you would like to become invisible, according to his plan, here is the secret: Catch a black cat while it is walking toward the setting sun. Cut off its left ear. Wrap the ear in a leaf from a tree growing in a graveyard. Then go home without speaking to anyone and maintain silence until the following day. Upon arising, the candidate for invisibility must walk toward the rising sun until he meets the cat whose ear he has cut off. Then he must remove the other ear. Whenever the tips of the two ears are joined and certain magic words are repeated, the person holding the ears becomes invisible. He will remain invisible as long as the ear tips touch.

WAR IS PRODUCING NEW MILLIONAIRES IN JAPAN

Tokio, Jan. 26.—The European war has brought undreamed of prosperity to Japan. Evidence of this is found in the enormous increase in the gold reserve, but in the fact that the Japanese newspapers are busy chronicling the rise of many new-made millionaires, who plunged early in the war and emerged with riches. The leading shippers of iron and steel orders which will keep them busy for three years. Thanks to the withdrawal of German vessels, Japanese shipping is enjoying the greatest prosperity in its history. Shipping men are predicting that Japan will in a few years have a mercantile marine second only to that of England. They believe that the building is destined to become a great nation in Japan. A Japanese named Nobuo Uchida, who at the outbreak of the war was a clerk, saw that a naval war meant golden harvest for shipping. He left his desk and launched a shipping business, chartering small vessels. Now he owns four steamers and has cleared more than $1,000,000. In Tokyo the Japanese shipping company, controlled by a business man of that name, has netted $2,500,000. Japan's gold reserve has increased by $250,000,000. She now has in reserve $250,000,000.

BRITISH SEEK MEANS AGAINST PEEVISH LOSSES

London, Jan. 26.—A proposal is being considered in the highest quarters to provide against the extinction of British peacocks by the operations of the war. One peacock without an Lord Kesteven, already has been killed in action and several heirs to peerages, including those of Lord Lincolnton and Lord Ashcombe, have fallen, leaving no heirs to their titles. It is considered possible that steps soon will be taken to create "special heirs" for succession to titles. In the female line, six titles have become extinct so far during the war. At the beginning of 1915, there were 551 hereditary peers in the United Kingdom.

JAMES ZUILL M'CLAY PIONEER STOCKMAN IS CALLED SUDDENLY

Succumbs Yesterday Afternoon at Johnstown Home—Internal Hemorrhage Thought Death Cause.

The death of James Zuill McClay, prominent breeder and importer of Clydesdale horses and Shorthorn cattle, a judge of horses who has passed on exhibits at all the bigger fairs in the middle west, and who was influential in the establishing of a county Y. M. C. A., occurred about 3:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the family home in the town of Johnstown. Mr. McClay was fifty-three years of age.

The demise was very sudden. Half an hour before his death Mr. McClay was apparently on the road to recovery and was planning on shortly being able to leave his bed. He had been ill with pneumonia for some time past but the symptoms earlier during the afternoon seemed to indicate that the worse stages were past. Mr. McClay for some time, however, had been a sufferer with purpura hemorrhagica and it is thought that he suffered an internal hemorrhage just previous to his death.

The funeral will be held from the family home in Johnstown, Thursday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, the Rev. C. Y. Love of the United Presbyterian church, of which Mr. McClay was a staunch member, officiating. The remains are to be laid to rest in the cemetery at Johnstown Center.

James Zuill McClay, many years enjoyed a high standing in the United States and Canada, among importers and breeders of Clydesdale stock. With his brother David McClay, he collected the first group of blooded Clydesdales in the United States. On their farms, aggregating about nine hundred acres, in Johnstown, they had blooded mares and bred about thirty Shorthorn cattle. In 1904, the McClay farm swept the field with its exhibit of Clydesdales. At other state fairs during the past number of years the McClay horses have without fail always taken first honors.

Mr. McClay's knowledge of Clydesdales brought him into prominence and his services as judge were in demand through the fair seasons each year, both in the United States and Canada.
Mr. McClay was a member of the United Presbyterian church of Johnstown. For a number of years he had been superintendent of the Sunday School and was noted for his interest in youth. He was a prohibitionist and supported his stand strongly and fair and without care for opposition arrayed against his personal beliefs. His open and fair-minded temperament drew about him a wide circle of acquaintances and friends who admired him for his stand for truth and righteousness. He was of true Christian character. When the death of James McClay, county Young Men's Christian association originated Mr. McClay as among the first to foresee its possibilities and advantages. He thrust his energies into the work and untiring effort witnessed the institution progress into organization and finally extend itself octopus-like beyond every channel of Rock county until now almost every community has affiliated itself with the rural work of the association.

Mr. McClay was born at Johnstown, Minn., in 1853. His father, John and Jane Zuill McClay, who settled in Rock county in 1843. In 1888, on the third day of October, he was united in marriage to Jean McFarland, daughter of James McFarland. He is survived by the widow, three daughters, Mary McClay, who resides at home, Margaret McClay, a student at Beloit college and Catherine McClay, who attends Beloit college at Monmouth, Ill.; two sons, John McClay of Milton college and James Gordon McClay, at home. He is also survived by two sisters, Mrs. Archie Reid of this city and two brothers, David McClay of Johnstown and William McClay of this city.

Mr. McClay's early education was secured in the country schools of Johnstown. Later he was a student at Milton college.
Carl Hjalmar Larson.
The death of Carl Hjalmar Larson occurred at his home at 1571 Pine street, shortly after eleven o'clock last evening. Mr. Larson had been sick but a short while. He was twenty-four years of age. He was a native of Sweden and was born in this city June 14, 1892. He had always made his home here and was a machinist by trade, with a promising and bright future. Mr. Larson has a large number of friends in the city who are grieved to learn of his death.
He is survived by the widow and by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Larson. The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon from the home at two-fifteen o'clock, and at three o'clock from the Norwegian Lutheran church, the Rev. T. C. Thorson officiating.

Manley H. Michalis.
Funeral services for the remains of the late Manley H. Michalis were conducted this afternoon by the Rev. George Edwin Parliase at the home, 718 Milwaukee avenue. Many friends and there were many beautiful floral tributes. The pallbearers were: Will McCue, Jesse Earle, J. A. Strizle, W. J. Skelly, T. Hutchinson and the Rev. T. C. Thorson. ## PLAN BASKET BALL TOURNAMENT AT "Y"; WILL HOLD CONTESTS

Tournament For Graded School Members of the Association is Planned For February.

One of the big features which the officers of the association have been planning out for the last few days is a basketball tournament. The tournament will start some time in February. At present five schools of the city have entered their teams and it is hoped that the rest will enter as soon as possible so that the schedule can be arranged. There will be two divisions to the league. One will be for the schools having eighth grades and the other for the schools not having the eighth.

All games will be played on Saturday mornings between the hours of ten and twelve o'clock. The schedule will be announced later and all members of the teams are urged to clip it so that it may be used for reference. Each team will elect a captain and they will meet some time this week to work on the schedule. If the tournament proves popular, an annual affair.

February first is the date set for the big game which will be held in the boys' department of the Young Men's Christian Association. Contests in quilts and carroms will be arranged and if the number of entrants is large, a contest in pool will be arranged. The prize offered for the winners. The entry fee will be five cents and all members are urged to enter in the tournament.

On Thursday, January 27th, there will be a grand assembly of all the Indian tribe Bible clubs. A fine program will be arranged and there will be many songs and talks. After the program all the members will enjoy a "Dutch treat."

A very interesting meeting of the graded school cabinets will be held Saturday afternoon at one o'clock. All the members are urged to be present as some very important matters are to come up and to be decided upon.

Entries are now being received for the billiard tournament, which has been arranged for the fellows of the association in the boys department. A few of the association should join this as the competition will be keen.

ENGINE CREW LEAPS INTO CHILLY RIVER TO ESCAPE ICE JAM

Men, Milwaukee Road Employees, Make Narrow Escape On Ice Covered Bridge.

William Bush, 1014 Ravine street, a Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Ry. engineer, and his fireman, Lloyd Dawes, 1116 Wall street, this morning narrowly escaped serious if not fatal injury when they jumped from their locomotive near Rockford to escape consequences of their train being hurled into Rock river as it rushed towards a bridge covered several feet deep with great cakes of ice. January frosts, bringing increasing quantities of water down the river, caused a jam at the bridge. It is between Latham Park and Rockford, in Illinois.

Bush and Dawes were brought back to Janesville this morning on the passenger train which was delayed for over an hour as a result of the jam. They were badly bruised and suffered many lacerations. Dawes' face was cut to the extent of necessitating sewing. Apparently the men received no fractures or great lacerations, but the men complained of a badly wrenched left side.

Bush's train, a freight, left here early this morning. Everything passed safely until the ice jammed bridge was sighted. They were traveling at a speed of between thirty-five and forty miles an hour. The north approach to the structure is around a curve and it was not until the train was almost upon the bridge did the engineers sight the obstructions. On the upper side was a great pile of ice and on the lower side, across the river for the entire length of the bridge, mixed in with the ice were limbs and branches and other debris. The mass formed a dam and on either side of the bridge the water was overflowing. On the bridge the large cakes had lodged threatening a derailment of the locomotive of the train and perhaps its plunging into the chills of the river.

Bush and Dawes had no spare moments for consultation and following a glance from one and a look before jumping and diving for the deck and leaped. Both fell at the extreme end of the jam amidst sharp edged cakes of huge dimensions.

Bush had set his brakes and air before jumping and with a grinding crash the train slowed to a stop. The mess on the bridge until it stopped. Luckily the train did not derail. Bruised and dripping wet they crawled from the river. Dawes sat his watch when he went into the river. It was found later by a brakeman on a northbound passenger train.

NOMINATION PAPERS TO BE FILED MARCH 1

Petition Signed by Voters and Declaration of Intention of Running Must Be Filed by March First.

Under the provisions of the commission form of government, as in force in the city of Janesville, candidates for the office of city commissioner to succeed Roy M. Cummings, must file their nomination papers at least twenty days before the primary election, which comes on March twenty-first. This will allow the candidates for this office until March first, to file their papers with the city clerk.

Papers for the petition to be circulated through the voters, and the nomination papers can be obtained at the office of the city clerk. Each candidate must file a petition signed by at least ten qualified voters, stating that they desire to have the name of the candidate on the primary ballot. On or before March first, the declaration of the intention of running must be filed and then the name of the candidate is placed on the primary ballot.

The names of the two men receiving the highest number of votes at the primary election will be placed on the ballot for the general election, which will be held on April fourth.

With the public announcing of the candidates for the office, interest in the political race is becoming intense. The office that is to be filled is for a six-year term and carries a salary of two thousand dollars per annum. This commission, under the present arrangements, is superintendent of the newly acquired water works, the most important duty of the office. The office also carries other duties as to city affairs, such as the collection of taxes for city bills and other secondary business.

COMMISSION HOLDS MEETING ON TUESDAY

Board of Public Works' Report on Lighting Contract to Be Submitted Soon.

It was reported at the council meeting held yesterday afternoon that the report of the board of public works on the award for the lighting contract will probably be submitted at the meeting scheduled to take place Friday afternoon. The council passes upon the recommendations by the board before the award is completed, but all members of the commission are of the opinion that the bid of the industrial foundry company is the most acceptable to the city.

At the meeting Tuesday Mayor James E. French held a veto against the report of the extending of the time limit for paying taxes without the two percent penalty for a period of fifteen days. The resolution carried without dissenting vote. This will give the taxpayers until February 15th to make payments and will enable the city treasurer to handle the collections better.

The salary order for the month of January for the city officers was allowed and orders drawn for the amounts.

The notice of the election of the property owners on Milton avenue and the statement and schedule of special assessments, where the property owners decided to pay for the improvement, was received and placed on file. The schedule of those who elected to make payment at a future date was also received and filed. This schedule amounted to $2,649.92. Mayor Fathers and City Clerk J. P. Hammerlund were directed to prepare bonds for this amount and the mayor and city clerk were authorized to sell the bonds.

NEW LIFE GIVEN

Our body is likened to a machine. When the parts are all new and kept well oiled, it runs along smoothly. But by the parts become worn and soon have to be replaced by new ones.

So likewise the parts of the human machine must be kept in healthy condition. But if the machine is out or becomes diseased and the worn parts have to be replaced by new tissue.

There may be many organs of different parts of the body diseased at the same time. The Milk and Rest Treatment can cure several ailments at the same time as easily as one, because proper and sufficient repair matter is furnished to all tissues needing it.

UP RIVER COTTAGE BURNS EARLY TODAY

Summer Home Owned by B. C. Gardner Occupied by Vandals Who Are Responsible For Fire.
Vandals who broke into the summer cottage owned by B. C. Gardner three and a half miles up the river, were responsible for a fire which burned the building to the ground at seven o'clock this morning.

Cunningham, Claire Capelle and H. J. R. I. visited the place during this morning and found footprints of two persons, one a man and the other probably a woman. Potatoes and debris were scattered about indicating that the party had occupied the cottage for a day or more.

Mr. Bear's cottage, a few rods up the river from the Gardner place had also been broken into and the interior was badly disarranged.

Mr. Gardner's loss is estimated between $400 and $500, only partially covered by insurance. The cottage was built last summer and was a most attractive camp.

When you think of insurance think of C. F. Beers, Adv.

NEWS NOTES FROM MOWELAND

One of the greatest artists on the picture screen in these busy days of the silent drama is the popular King Baggot.

This actor stands almost alone in comedy, drama, romantic and even tragic roles. King Baggot is a genuine actor with a magnetic personality and stage presence that makes his work stand out so brilliantly on the screens of picture theatres.

Born in St. Louis, Mo., where as a boy he was leader on the amateur stage, Baggot entered the professional ranks after directing the Players' Club production of his home town. He was an athlete, having been captain of a college football team, and still retains his splendid physique, due, no doubt, to his athletic pastime when a boy. His experience in the dramatic profession was in an amateur production given by the Catholic Church in St. Louis. This led him into professional life, in spite of his father's objections to the stage.

VIVIAN BLACKBURN DEFIES CONVENTIONS

Vivian Blackburn, who is featured in the film production of "Excuse Me," is the daughter of an army officer who was stationed at Fort Leavenworth, Kan. As everyone knows, army circles have social strata of their own. The youthful Miss Blackburn has a mind of her own, and she has an ardent ambition to go on the stage, she defied conventions and went to New York to seek an engagement. There she was fortunate enough to meet May Irwin and played with her for one season. Then followed engagements with John Drew and three seasons with Anna Held. She was in the original company of "Excuse Me."

The evil consequences that follow a young woman's effort to win her husband's interest from engrossing political affairs by flirting with a dangerous young society man are illustrated with poignant effect in the new photodrama, "A Woman Sows." This will be released on Jan. 26.

AT THE APOLLO.

Edna Goodrich Tonight.

The Paramount offering at the Apollo tonight is the beautiful star, Edna Goodrich, together with James Cruze and Thomas Meighan in "Armstrong's Wife."

Harvey Arnold, a professional gambler taking an enforced vacation in a small country town, meets a beautiful girl, May Fielding, who falls in love with him.

Complications arise with May's next door neighbor, David Armstrong, who finally tells her that if she will not marry him he will strike out for himself in Canada. May elopes with Arnold and David, heart-broken, goes to Canada.

May is horrified when she discovers Arnold's business and he promises to give it up as soon as he has time to arrange matters. Arnold's partner, Esabrook, turns traitor, however, and induces the police to raid their gambling house. Arnold tells May to escape to Canada.

David reads an account of the raid and insists to May and wants her to marry him. May at first refuses, but when he offers her the protection of his name and swears he will ask nothing more, she consents.

Arnold finds his way to Canada, and May catches a glimpse of him at a dance. Arnold having seen the couple follows them and learns where they live.

The Mounted Police of Canada, being on Arnold's trail, pursue him, but May turns them off the scent. A quarrel arises between David and Arnold who says he will not leave the country unless May joins him. David is confronted by Arnold with a revolver. May enters to find her husband in danger and with her own gun threatens to shoot Arnold. Arnold fires and wounds David and threatens to fire again. May puts her gun to her heart and threatens to kill herself. The police pick up Arnold in his attempt to flee, is shot by them.

AT THE PRINCESS.

New Triangle Program Will Offer Good Plays.

The Triangle Photo drama at the Princess for the first week of the new program will include two adventure stories with strong elements of romance—namely, "The Lamb" and "The Iron Strain," "My Valet," a two-reel Keystone, and "A Game Old Knight," a one-reel Keystone. It is a fascinating diversity of entertainment. Contrast Fairbanks' breezy methods as an American traveler in Mexico with Dustin Farnum's cave man type of Alaskan teamster or Raymond Hitchcock's inequitable bachelor or Mack Sennett's bungling servant. Compare, again, Mabel Normand's pert audacity as an ingenue with Seena Owen's classical role as the Lambs, Mary or the laughable antics of Cecile Arnold and Louise Fazenda in "A Game Old Knight." The point is that such superbly witty and clever characterizations have been made possible only by the engagement of the very greatest artists and the supervision of the leading directors. In other words, the film play has become a work of art worthy of the patronage of the most refined and cultured classes as well as of the masses who have always enjoyed it.

"The Brink" Mutual Masterpiece on Wednesday Only.

A millionaire's son, whose fascination for the roulette wheel and other games of chance not only drives him penniless from home, but later brings about his association with a band of jewel thieves and his regeneration by a beautiful girl who loves him—this is the all powerful story revealed in "The Brink," a four part Mutual Masterpiece produced by the New York Motion Picture Corporation.

Forrest Winant, one of the most popular players now before the public, has selected by Mr. Ince to head the cast portraying the dissolute and big millionaire. It can be said for Mr. Winant that his characterization of this exceptionally important role ranks as one of the greatest achievements of his kind in motion picture history. For the presentation of Mr. Winant in this important part, an exceptionally powerful cast was selected to appear in his support.

Among them are such noted stars of the screen as Rhea Mitchell, Arthur Maude, Joseph J. Dowling and Lewis Durham.

A Story Of Suffering

Told by a Janesville Man.

Here is a story of a man suffering from a kidney ailment, and how he got through it. But why endure it? Read Mr. Wright's words and you will realize that much suffering does not have to be endured. Proof of merit like the following is what you have been looking for.

A. S. Wright, railroad engineer, 321 No. Chatham St., Janesville, says: "After having an engine for years, it's no wonder I began to feel that something was wrong. My kidneys acted irregularly. I had severe backaches and pains across the small of my back. It hurt me to get up or down. Almost all railroad men know about this. Kidney Pills so, of course, I used some, too. In a short time they put a stop to all the pains and made my kidneys act as they should."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Dr. Pierce's Kidney Pills, the same that Mr. Wright had. Foster-McMillan Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

For Croup—Mothers—Always Keep This Handy

The day of the Croup scare is over for those parents who wisely keep Dr. King's Cough Syrup in the home ready for instant use.

Mrs. Chas. Reitz, Allen's Mills, Pa., writes: "I have used Dr. King's Cough Syrup for the past eleven years and would not be without it. It has saved me many a doctor's bill for colds and croup."

If toward midnight the little one grows hoarse and croupy, if their breath becomes wheezy and stuffy, give them Dr. King's Cough Syrup. It will soothe the inflamed throat, loosen the phlegm, and soon they will have easy breathing and peaceful quiet sleep.

Lime Starvation Causes Tuberculosis

The Medical Record (New York) of December 18, 1909, contains an article on "The Treatment of Pulmonary Tuberculosis Based on the Assumption That the Disease Is Due to Lime Starvation," by Dr. John H. Russell, who says: "The condition which is recognized as preceding the active development of tuberculosis in the adult may be considered as due to lime starvation."

Among the inorganic substances lime salts appear to be of special physiological importance, but if the salts are in organic combination it is difficult to suppose that the cells can appropriate them for food.

Years of widespread use confirm the belief that the success of the treatment of tuberculosis in cases of pulmonary tuberculosis (consumption) and chronic throat and bronchial disease is due in large measure to the action of lime, so combined with other ingredients as to be easily appropriated by the cells.

The Lone Wolf

By LOUIS JOSEPH VANCE

(Copyright, by Louis Joseph Vance.)

"Something like that," he assented a bit sheepishly, "too absurd for consideration. But now we'd be due to clear out of this before they find a way in."

He shrugged himself into his borrowed raincoat, buttoned it to his chin, and turned down the brim of his soft felt hat; but when he looked up at the girl again he found she hadn't moved; rather, she remained as one spellbound by thought, staring less at than through him, her expression inscrutable.

"Well," he ventured—"if you're quite ready, Miss Shannon—"

"Mr. Lanyard," she demanded almost sharply, "what was the full wording of that message?"

"If you must know—"

He lifted a deprecative shoulder. "If you like, I'll read it to you—or, rather, translate it from the thieves' argot Popinot complimented me by using."

"Not necessary," she said tersely. "I'll take your word for it. But you must tell me the truth."

"As you will, Popinot delicately suggested that if I leave you here, to be reunited to your alleged parent—if I'll trust to his word of honor, that is, and walk out of the house alone, he'll give me twenty-four hours in which to leave Paris."

"Then only I stand between you and—"

"My dear young woman!" he protested hastily. "Please don't run away with any absurd notion like that. Do you imagine I'd consent to treat with such cannibals under any circumstances?"

"All the same," she contended stubbornly. "I'm the stumbling-block. You're risking your life for me—"

"I'm not," he insisted almost angrily. "You are," she returned with quiet conviction.

"Well," he laughed, "have it your own way! But it's my life, isn't it? I really don't see how you're going to prevent my risking it for anything that may seem to me worth the risk!"

But she wouldn't laugh; only her countenance, suddenly bereft of its wonted expression, softened winningly—and her eyes grew very kind to him.

"As long as it's understood I understand—very well," she said quietly. "I'll do as you wish, Mr. Lanyard."

"Good!" he cried cheerfully. "I wish, by your leave, to take you out to dinner. This way, please!"

Leading her through the scullery, he unbarred and swung open a low, arched door in one of the walls, uncovering the black mouth of a narrow and tunnel-like passageway that ran off at right angles from the side of the house.

With a word of caution, flash-lamp in his left hand, pistol in right, Lanyard stepped out into the darkness.

In two minutes he was back with a look of relief.

"All clear," he reported; "I felt pretty sure Popinot was ignorant of this emergency exit—else we'd have entertained uninvited guests long since. Now, half a minute."

The electric meter occupied a place on the wall of the scullery not far from the door. Prying open its cover, he unscrewed and removed the fuse-plug, plunging the entire house in complete darkness.

"That'll keep 'em guessing a while!" he explained with a chuckle. "They'll hesitate a long time before rushing a dark house infested by a desperate armed man—if I know anything about that mongrel crew! Besides, when they do get their courage up, the lack of light will stave off discovery of this way of escape. And now, one word more."

A flash of the lamp located her hand. Calmly he possessed himself of it.

"I've brought you into trouble, enough as it is through my stupidity," he said; "but for that, this place should have been a refuge to us until we were quite ready to leave Paris. So now we mustn't forget, before we go out to run you only know what gauntlet, to fix a rendezvous in event of separation. Popinot, for instance, may have drawn a cordon around the block; we can't tell until we're in the street; if he has, you must leave me to keep them interested and—ab—diverted until you're safe beyond their reach. Oh, don't worry—I'm perfectly well able to take care of myself. But afterward we must know where to find each other. Hotels, cafes and restaurants are out of the question—in the first place, we've barely money enough for our dinner; besides, all such places are certain to be watched closely. Our embassies and consulates aren't open at all hours, and will likewise be watched. There remain—unless you can suggest something—only the churches; and I can think of none better suited to our purposes than the Sacre-Coeur."

Her fingers tightened gently upon his.

"I understand," she said quietly; "if we're obliged to separate I'm to go direct to the Sacre-Coeur up on the hill-top and await you there."

"Right! But let's hope there'll be no such necessity."

Then, hand in hand, like frightened children, these two stole down the tunnel-like passageway, through a small, forlorn court, more like a well, crammed between two tall old tenements, and so came out into the gloomy, sinuous and silent Rue d'Assas.

Here they encountered few wayfarers; and to those few, preoccupied with anxiety to win to shelter from the inclement night, they seemed, no doubt, some student of the Quartier with his sweetheart—Lanyard, in his shabby raincoat, striding rapidly, head and shoulders bowed against the driving mist, the girl in her trim Burberry clinging trustfully to his arm.

Avoiding the nearer steps of the underground Metropolitan as dangerous, Lanyard steered a roundabout course through byways to the Rue de Sevres station of the Nord-Sud, from which, in due course, they climbed to the surface again at the Place de la Concorde, walked several blocks, picked up a taxicab, and in less than half an hour from the time of their departure from the Impasse Stanislas were comfortably ensconced in a cabinet particulier of a little restaurant of modest pretensions just north of Les Halles.

They feasted famously—the cuisine, if bourgeois, was admirable and, better still, well within the resources of Lanyard's emaciated purse. Nor did he fret that, when the bill had been paid and the essential tips bestowed, there would remain in his pocket little more than cab fare. Supremely self-confident, he harbored no doubts of a smiling future—now that the dark pages in his record had been turned and sealed by a resolution he held irrevocable.

His spirits had mounted to a high pitch, thanks to their successful evasion. "He was young, he was in love, he was hungry, he was—in short—very much alive. And the consciousness of common peril knitted an enchanting intimacy into their talk."

For the first time in his history Lanyard found himself in the company of a woman to whom he dared—and cared—to speak without reserve—a circumstance intrinsically intoxicating. And stimulated by her unquestionable interest and sympathy, he did talk without reserve—of old Troyon's and its drudge Marcel, of Bourke and his wanderings, of the education of the Lone Wolf and his career, less in pride than in relief that it was ended, of the future he must achieve for himself.

And, sitting with chin cradled on the backs of her interlaced fingers, the girl listened with such indulgence as women find always for their lovers. Of herself she had little to say. Lanyard filled in to his taste the outlines of the simple history of the young woman of good family obliged to become self-supporting.

And at times her grave eyes clouded and her attention wandered, it was less in ennui than because of occult trains of thought set in motion by some chance word or phrase of Lanyard's.

"I'm boring you," he suggested once with quick contrition, waking up to the fact that he'd monopolized the conversation for many minutes on end.

She shook a pensive head. "No, again. But I wonder, do you appreciate the magnitude of the task you've set yourself?"

"Possibly not," he conceded arrogantly; "but it doesn't matter. The heavier the odds, the greater the incentive to win."

"But," she objected, "you've told me a curious story of one who never had a chance or incentive to go straight—as you put it. And yet you seem to think that an overnight resolution to reform is all that's needed to change all the habits of a lifetime. You persuade me of your sincerity of today; but how will it be with you tomorrow—and not so much tomorrow as six months from tomorrow, when you've found the going rough and know you've only to take one step aside to gain a smooth and easy way?"

"If I fail, then, it will be because I'm unfit—and I'll go under and never be heard of again. But I shan't fail. It seems to me the very fact that I want to go straight is proof enough that I've something inherently decent in me to build on."

"I do believe that, and yet—" She lowered her head and began to trace a meaningless pattern on the cloth before she resumed. "You've given me to understand that I'm responsible for your sudden awakening—that it's because of a regard conceived for me you're so anxious to become an honest man. Suppose—suppose you were to find out you'd been mistaken in me?"

"That isn't possible," he objected promptly.

She smiled upon him wistfully. "But if it were—"

"Then—I think," he said soberly—"I think I'd feel as though there were nothing but emptiness beneath my feet!"

"And you'd—backslide?"

"How can I tell?" he expostulated. "It's not a fair question. I don't know."

Dinner Stories

A gentleman in New Orleans advertised for a man to do chores around the house and the advertisement was answered by a colored man.

"As you married?" asked the prospective employer.

"Yes, sah, I see married," replied the applicant, "but mah wife is out of a job. Dat's why I see got to shift for mahself."

Ethiopi Root was discussing in New York the recent constitutional convention.

"But there was one group," he said.

"They'd have to be black!"

"If you found I had deceived you—"

"Miss Shannon!" He threw an arm across the table and suddenly imprisoned her hand. "There's no use beating about the bush. You've got to know."

She drew back suddenly with a frightened look and a monosyllabic of sharp remonstrance: "No!"

"But you must listen to me. I want you to understand. Bourke used to say to me: 'The man who lets love into his life opens a door no mortal hand can close—and God only knows what will follow in!' And Bourke was right. Now that door is open in my heart, and I think that whatever follows in won't be evil or degrading. Oh, I've said it a dozen different ways of indirection, but I may as well say it squarely now. I love you; it's love of you makes me want to go straight, in the hope that when I've proved myself you'll maybe let me ask you to marry me."

"Perhaps you're in love with a better man today; but I'm willing to chance that; a year brings many changes. Perhaps there's something I don't fathom in your doubting my strength and constancy. Only the outcome can declare that. But please understand this: If I fail to make good it will be solely because I'm unfit, and have proved it. All I ask is what you've generously promised me—opportunity to come to you at the end of the year and make my report. And then, if you will, you can say no to the question I'll ask you, and I shan't resent it, and it won't ruin me; for if a man can stick to a purpose for a year he can stick to it forever, with or without the love of the woman he loves."

She heard him out without attempt at interruption, but her answer was prefaced by a sad little shake of her head.

"That's what makes it so hard, so terribly hard," she said. "Of course I've understood you—all that you've said by indirection, and much besides, has had its meaning to me—and I'm glad and proud of the honor you offer me. But I can't accept it. I can never accept it—not now nor a year from now. And it isn't fair to let you go on hoping that I might some time consent to marry you. For that's impossible."

"You—forgive me—you're not already married?"

"No."

"Or promised?"

"No."

"Or in love with someone else?"

Again she told him, gently, "No."

BACKACHE, SWELLING OF HANDS AND FEET.

Dear Editor:—

I appeal to those of your readers who are bothered with backache and a constant tired, feeling to give "Anuric" a trial. It is a remedy recently discovered by Dr. Pierce of the Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y. I suffered from backache, swelling of hands and feet, too frequent excitation from the kidneys and many other symptoms. Was unable to work, but after taking just one box of "Anuric" according to directions I am again able to perform my daily duties.

(Signed) W. R. Bray.

Note:—Folks in town and adjoining counties are delighted with the results they have obtained by using "ANURIC," the newest discovery of Dr. Pierce, who is head of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, in Buffalo, N. Y. Those who started the day with a backache, stiff legs, arms and muscles, and an aching head (worn out before the day began because they were in and out of bed half a dozen times at night) are appreciating the perfect rest, comfort and new strength they obtained from Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets. To prove that this is a certain uric acid solvent and conquers headache, kidney and bladder diseases and rheumatism, if you've never used the "Anuric," cut this out and send ten cents to Doctor Pierce for a large sample package. This will prove to you that "Anuric" is thirty-seven times more active than lithia in eliminating uric acid—and the most perfect kidney and bladder corrector. If you are a sufferer, go to your best druggist and ask for a 50-cent box of "Anuric." Your run no risk for Dr. Pierce's good name stands behind this wonderful new discovery as it has for the past half century for his "Golden Medical Discovery," a general tonic made from roots with pure glycerine which makes the blood pure, his "Favorited Prescription" for weak women and "Pleasant Pellets" for liver ills.

How to Sell Real Estate Through Want Ads

In advertising real estate (improved or unimproved farm lands or city or suburban property) through the Want Ad columns, be guided by the nature of your offer. This includes location, kind of land, market facilities, improvements, price, terms, etc.

The real estate Want Ad also embraces something else. If you do not get in touch with prospective buyers, change your copy. There are several ways of saying the same thing, and often the way that appears as most reasonable to you, does not strike the prospective buyer in the same light.

Real estate presents more than one aspect. Ideas of a series of Want Ads on a tract of land, or a farm, will be found in the following:

THE BUSINESS IDEA

FOR SALE—A FARM OF 160 acres of choice land, two miles from a city of 15,000. Has 120 acres under cultivation. Improved with a 2-room frame house in excellent condition, large barn, and numerous fine-class outbuildings. It will pay the right person 15% on the investment besides a return for his family and himself. Full facts on application.

COMMENT

Some persons buy land because it looks like a good investment. You see no price named in this Want Ad. The price may be high, but the fact that it will pay 15% on the investment besides a return is important. This approach will appeal to those who are looking for something worth while from a monetary viewpoint.

THE HOME IDEA

FOR SALE—A FARM OF 160 acres of choice land, two miles from a city of 15,000. Improved with excellent 2-room modern house, good barn, silo and outbuildings. COMMENT

There are many people who want to live on a farm that will give them comfort, and place them near the conveniences they desire. Class of neighbors, lodges, clubs, etc., will also appeal to these people. Many farms are sold on values other than the land.

The kind of crops, the kind of stock, the annual yield, railway transportation, dairy features, poultry possibilities or poultry and stock records, chance of unimproved land to become more valuable, etc., are all leading ideas that will make
